Glee – French Revolution Style Extra Credit Opportunity

Your mission: Create musical lyrics to a popular song on the topic of the French Revolution

Your purpose: To review the major points of the French Revolution

Your timeline: This is due on Monday, October 21, 2013

Your parameters: You must write at least two verses and the chorus (repeating part of a song) to the tune of any song you choose. This song you choose to write the lyrics to MUST BE school appropriate. You need to include facts about the French Revolution in your lyrics, and the information must be accurate.

Your reward: This assignment is worth 14 extra credit points total. You may receive 7 points for writing the song lyrics, and if you choose to perform your song on Monday (I can pull up the tune on You Tube), you will receive 7 points for the performance.

French Revolution Paper Doll

Directions: Create one person from the French Revolution and develop a background story and paper doll to represent him or her. Your background story must be at least one paragraph. Your person can be from the 1st, 2nd, or 3rd Estate. You must take into consideration the role of the estate your individual represents in the background story. The clothing you draw for your individual must be appropriate to the Estate in which he or she belongs to. You might consider including the following information in your story: what is your name, which Estate do you belong to, how old are you, are you married, what do you do for a living, do you support the king or the revolution and why?

The paper doll must be drawn and colored with the appropriate attire. The paper doll is worth 10 points, and the paragraph story is worth 10 points. This is due on Monday, October 21 where you will present your doll and their story to the class during an additional class activity which will earn you an easy class participation grade. However, if you do not have the paper doll or the story, your class participation grade will not be good. Take advantage of this easy opportunity to earn some great grades!
